No. 1458.

To the Printer of the DAILY GAZETTEER.

SIR,

THE Present State of DAM-
NATION in our Theatres, is talk'd of by almost every smart young Fellow about Town, practis'd by one Half of them, and understand'd, I am afraid, but by very few.

The Right of an Audience to reject or approve such Performances as are offered for Publick Instruction or Entertainment, cannot be disputed, while we purchase them at our own proper Expence: And this Privilege was thought so reasonable by the Ancients, as to be allowed even when the Exhibitions were made without Charge to the Spectators.

When Shakespear and Johnson began to build the English Theatres, our Ancestors were so charmed with the Novelty of those Representations, that it was some time before their Merit began to be critically examined. And I must confess, when we consider the State of Wit at the Time they lived, the Humour and Language of the Age, the Political Restraints they labour'd under with Regard to Satire, and the Ignorance and Want of Letters in the Majority of their Audiences;— instead of lamenting their Defects, we shall find great Reason for admiring their Excellencies, and the amazing Progress they made in an Art excellent in itself, and to which very few Genius's are equal, with the Helps they have left.

When the Reputation of our Stage was every Day increasing, and our Poets seem to have begun to emulate each other in the good Tendency, as well as the Composition of their Pieces, the unfortunate Civil War put a Stop to its Progress, and for a long Time damp'd the Spirit of the Poets, engag'd the People's Attention to their more immediate Interests, and with Monarchy the Muses seem to have deserted the Land.

At the Restoration, a general Levity over-run the Nation; nor were the Poets more circumspect than other Writers: A Swarm of new Plays soon appear'd, the Authors whereof labour'd to out-do each other in stretching the Bounds of Modesty to the utmost, and some of them by venturing on the Verge of Obscenity, lost their Hold, and fell headlong into such Descriptions and Representations as were loath'd by every modest Ear, and afforded but a transient Delight to such Spectators as were not totally abandon'd.

After a Glut of these, Theatrick Damnation came into Fashion, and the Dramatick Writers found themselves under a Necessity of writing either with Corning or Wit; and the latter owing much of its Force to the Humour of the Times, many Comedies have reach'd us, which were rather indulged than approved at their first Appearance, either out of Regard to a fashionable Dislike of the Characters they expose, the Figure of their Authors, or the Reception given them by Personages of the first Distinction.

Since that Time, new Picces have been censur'd with more Severity, and an establish'd Reputation has not been so easily obtain'd: For which I am apt to assign some other Reasons beside the generally supposed Want of Merit in them (which yet must be own'd too general.) The Number of Writers has greatly increas'd of late, and so few Men are capable of allowing others the Reward they deserve, that I cannot help thinking I sometimes perceive more of Refrainment than Criticism in such as have been pretty loud in our Stage Sentences.

Some have been so mistaken in the Exercise of this Power of Damning, as openly to assign Private Reasons for rejecting Picces which have been offered: And on these Occasions I always blushed for the Weakness of Gentlemen, who could so misapply a Power never properly exerted but against Stupidity, Folly, and Nonsense.

One Custom has insensibly gained upon us, that I can by no Means approve; I mean our enquiring critically into the Worth of all Picces where Genius is required, and receiving, without any such Enquiry, those which require no Genius at all: Thus, one Week I have seen an indifferent Comedy damn'd, and the next a very bad Pantomime calmly receiv'd.

It has been alledged, that Pantomimes are below the Dignity of Criticism; and I think so too: But if we think them worth looking at, why should we not make some Distinction between the Good and the Bad among them: And while a Poet is subject to every Spectator's Lash, I see no Cause why the Carpenter and Scene-Painter should be exempt from it; and the latter be secure of Success, while the former is almost as sure of the contrary.

Thus general, I think, ought to be the Censure of Theatrick Audiences: But no mean, no private View, of Honour or Interest, should ever sway the Voice of a Gentleman, one Way or other: When any thing but Merit is regarded, what can be our Rule? And while that is solely attended to, as all Gentlemen will have the same Candour exercised upon their Labours, none will have any just Ground for Complaint.

I am, SIR,
Your most humble Servant,
TOM. AIRY.

Yesterday arriv'd a Mail from Holland.

Petersburg, Feb. 9. N. S.

THE excessive cold Weather in these Parts has kill'd such Numbers of Wild-fowl, &c. in the Country, that the Peasants have glutted the Markets with them so that they sell for a Trifle; and such Abundance of Snow has fallen, that in several Places 'tis two or three Ellis deep. The Exportation of Corn is severely prohibited for fear of a Scarcity, and the Troops that were marching towards Estonia and Finland are oblig'd by the Severity of the Season to halt.

The Czarina, in order to encourage the Trade and Navigation of Foreigners to her Dominions, has lessen'd the Duties they used to pay on their Arrival at any of her Ports. The Garrison of Revel consists at present of 7000 Men, and that of Riga of 9000.

Copenhagen, Feb. 19. N. S. The Sound is so hard froze that the heaviest Carricks pass over it safely in several Places, which has not happen'd since 1659.

Vienna, Feb. 17. N. S. It appears that the Court persists in its Resolution to keep 130000 effective Men on foot, of whom there are to be 6000 in the Great Duchy of Tuscany, and 28000 in the Duchies of Milan, Mantua, Parma and Placentia. The Velt Marshal de Wallis is set out at length for the Castle of Spielberg in Moravia, and the Count de Neuperg for the Castle of Graz in Bohemia, pursuant to the Orders of the Council of War. The cold Weather is set in again sharper than ever. The Cardinals de Collonitz and Sintzendorf are preparing to go to the Conclave at Rome, and have each 12000 Florins allow'd them by the Court for Travelling-charges. A Cabinet Courier is sent from hence to Constantinople, with a Purse of several thousand Ducats to be distributed as 'tis said among certain Ministers at the Ottoman Porte. The Imperial Chamber is actually in Treaty with a Jew—who offers upon certain Conditions to pay the Arrears due to the Forces. The Velt Marshal de Palsi is arriv'd here from Hungary, being sent for by express Order of the Emperor, to whom he has had the Honour to pay his Respects, and he is to assist at a great Council which is to be held forthwith on some Affairs of Importance. The Court has given the necessary Orders for the March of 10 Regiments to the Austrian Netherlands, and for augmenting the Garrisons of Fribourg and Old Briar, and the Fortifications of Carlstadt Fort in Croatia.

Paris, Feb. 22. N. S. The Bishop of Nevers dy'd here two Days ago. They write from Poitiers, that the Sieur Valade, Parson of St. Michael one of the Parishes of Vivoone, is lately dead there aged 119, who was ordained Priest so long ago as 1652, and always said Mass till about a Year since when his Sight fail'd him, but he was sensible to the last, and subject to no other Ailment but the Weight of Years.

Vitualling Office, 22. February 1739.

WHEREAS in the Country Journal or Craftsman of the 16th of this present Month there is inserted the following Paragraph, viz.

Nothing is more necessary to a Squadron of Ships which are design'd for real Service, than to supply them with good and wholesome Provisions, especially on long Voyages, and sultry Climates, I hope therefore the strictest Care is taken as to this Particular, and that the Orders from above are punctually obey'd at the Victualling Office; though a Rumour flies about that some Complaints of this Kind have been lately made, and I am even inform'd that there is a Person who will undertake to prove, that great Quantities of Beef and Pork actually stunk before it was sent abroad. — This, if true, must be owing either to the Badness of the Commodities, when bought up, to the Want of Skill in salting them, or to some corrupt Gains made by those concerned in the Management of our Victualling.

This is to give Notice, that the Printer and Publisher of the said Paper will be prosecuted for the same as far as the Law will permit, unless he shall before the First Day of the next Term, discover to the Person whose Name is hereto subscribed, the Man who is said to have given the said Information, so as he may be prosecuted as the Law permits, who will, when discovered, be accordingly prosecuted, unless he shall in like manner produce the Person who is said to be willing to undertake the Proof of the Fact thereto mentioned.

And whereas in the said Country Journal there is inserted the following Paragraph, viz.

I have heard one Man declare, that having contracted to supply the Navy with a large Number of Bullocks, and neglecting to make the usual Present upon such Occasions, the Cattle were thrown back upon his Hands, under Pretence that they were not fit for his Majesty's Service; upon which he privately employ'd another Man to offer the very same Oxen, and by Tipping a Bank Note of Two hundred Pounds into proper Hands, they were reported to be very good Meat, and accordingly received.

This is to give Notice, that the Printer and Publisher of the said Paper, will in like manner be prosecuted for the same, unless he shall discover as aforesaid the Man who is said to make the Declaration aforesaid: And if the Person spoken of in the first of these Paragraphs, will prove that great Quantities of Beef and Pork that actually stunk, were sent abroad for the Use of his Majesty's Navy, as it is therein alleged he will undertake to prove, he shall on such Proof receive the Sum of Fifty Pounds from the Person subscribed hereto: Or, if the Man, who in the second Paragraph is said to have declared to the Writer of the said Paper as therein is contained, will prove the Fraud therein charged, he shall receive on making such Proof, from the Person here so subscribed, the Sum of one hundred Pounds.

By Order of the Commissioners for Victualling his Majesty's Navy, Seth Jermv, Secretary.
